

The oil & natural gas industry can be a job engine. Don't let Washington red tape hold it back.

America's oil and natural gas industry already supports 9.2 million jobs. With smart government policies, it could create many more and help drive economic recovery. Some in Washington have attempted to raise energy taxes and deter domestic energy development. Washington needs to cut the red tape and let job creators – like oil and natural gas companies – create jobs and get our economy moving.
