

NEBRASKA

The U.S. oil and natural gas industry provides energy security and economic benefits to our nation, supporting more than 9.8 million jobs and contributing $1.2 trillion in added value to the economy.

FOCUS: OZONE REGULATION

"The EPA has not supplied any evidence that this (ozone standard) will serve to benefit public health. We have a responsibility to both protect our environment and promote economic growth. The EPA's ozone regulations accomplish none of these objectives."

U.S. Sen. Deb Fischer

NEBRASKA ENERGY OVERVIEW

1962

The year the state's crude oil production peaked, at 25 million barrels.

Nebraska oil production is about one-eighth what it was in its top production year more than four decades ago. Yet, it's believed that the Niobrara shale formation, which is emerging as an oil play in Wyoming and Colorado to the north and reaches into the western part of Nebraska, may hold promise for the future. The state's energy use is led by coal with natural gas second. Nebraska's power generation comes mainly from coal and nuclear.

THE IMPACTS OF ENERGY POLICY CHOICES

Oil and natural gas innovations and investments have moved the U.S. from an era of energy scarcity to one of energy abundance in a few short years. Washington can make energy policy choices that will either continue or hinder America’s energy renaissance.

POTENTIAL IMPACT ON U.S. (BY 2035)	MORE

FOCUS: HYDRAULIC FRACTURING OVERSIGHT

“Another day, another decision and another court striking down this runaway Administration for unilaterally rewriting another law. Nobody in Nebraska voted to make the Interior Department a super-legislature. This ruling is an important victory for anyone who wants to protect three separate branches of government.”

U.S. Sen. Ben Sasse, after BLM fracking rules were rejected by a federal judge
