

API Document Policy

All API codebooks and publications are copyrighted materials. Photocopying copyrighted materials is illegal. All candidates are required to use documents that have been lawfully obtained. You may purchase API materials from our authorized redistributors.

NOTE: API members are eligible for a 30% discount on all API documents at HIS and Techstreet, and exam candidates are eligible for a 20% discount on all API documents. When calling to order, please identify yourself as an exam candidate and/or API member. Prices quoted will reflect the applicable discounts. No discounts can be made for ASME documents.

If you have questions regarding the authenticity of your documents, or if you know of any organization distributing unauthorized copies of ICP exam materials, please contact API at publications@api.org.

Usage and Printing Restrictions

Subscription services- API has an agreement with our some of our redistributors, that allow them to offer API standards via electronic subscriptions.

IHS, Techstreet, and API have agreed to allow authorized copies to be made of API publications for the API ICP Examination subject to the conditions outlined below. It is up to examination candidates to ensure that their organization has complied with these conditions.

- a) Any text, images, tables, pictures, graphics, or other elements of the Publication(s) that is retrieved, displayed, or outputted through the Service is and shall be at all times, solely owned by its respective copyright owner and is protected by United States law and international treaties.
- b) Subscribers may print copies of Publications for personal use only, and only on the condition that such copies include the embedded copyright notice, are dated, and are destroyed after each use.
- c) Except as allowed herein, Subscribers shall not loan, sell, rent, lease, reproduce, or otherwise distribute copies of any of the materials obtained through the Service, in either print or electronic format.
- d) Subscribers shall not further distribute Publications in print or electronic format, either by electronic mail or other means, to any other Subscriber or individual.
- e) Subscribers shall not reproduce material from any Publications for external use (outside the Subscriber's organization). However, where the Subscriber has a specification or tender requirement to reproduce Publications as part of his documentation for external submission to a customer, to a vendor, or for submission for a standards compliance audit, the necessary pages of the document, including the whole document if required, may be reproduced and submitted.
- f) No Subscriber may accumulate a print/hardcopy set of Publications comprising more than 10% of the total number of Publications within the Service. Example: if a Subscriber's Service contains 100 documents, no more than 10 can be printed and stored at any given time. The online Service should be considered the “master” set of Publications.

- g) All hardcopies of Publications must be destroyed on non-renewal or cancellation of the service. At its discretion, Licensor may require a certificate that destruction has occurred.

API Document Policy Q&A

Q. Does the API document policy mean that I have to buy a new set of publications for my exam?

A. No. It means that you must have an authorized exam materials. If you already possess a document package that was either legally purchased or otherwise lawfully obtained, you may use it.

Q. What is the definition of an authorized copy?

A. An authorized exam copy is defined as one that is either 1.) purchased through an API redistributor, or 2.) procured through an API subscription. If you have questions regarding the authenticity of your exam packet, please contact API.

Q. My company has a subscription with an authorized API redistributor. May I use the publications printed on that subscription?

A. Yes. If you are an employee of a company that has a subscription, you may use a printed copy of the exam materials provided you are a registered user of the company's subscription. If you are registered, your name will print on the document.

Q. I am a contractor at a company that has a subscription with an authorized API redistributor. May I use the publications printed on that subscription?

A. If you are a full time temporary employee or a full time contractor you would be allowed to print from the service so long as you are a registered user. If you are registered, your name will print on the document.

Q. My training provider has given me a set of documents to use. May I use them?

A. Applicants are permitted to use any documents that were legally obtained. So, if the training provider has purchased these documents – then yes, you may use it. If the documents are photocopies – you may not. You may only borrow items from a retail purchase, not from a subscription.

Q. My friend has a set of documents that he used for his exam. May I borrow them and use at the exam?

A. You may only borrow items from a retail purchase, not from a subscription. If your friend has legally purchased the ICP exam materials through an authorized API redistributor – then yes, you may use the materials.

Q. I have a set of documents that I bought last year, but the publications effectivity sheet has changed. Do I have to buy a whole new set or can I just get the updates?

A. You only need to purchase (or otherwise legally obtain) the updates to the documents that have changed.
