RE: New ANAB Logo for APIQR ISO 9001 and ISO 14001 Accredited Certificates

The ANSI-ASQ National Accreditation Board (ANAB), APIQR's accreditation body, has introduced a new symbol (logo) which may be used by all APIQR registered organizations with accredited ISO 9001 and ISO 14001 certificates. A sample of the new symbol is shown below.

APIQR has attached digital copies of the symbol for immediate use with this notification (contained in the file "ANAB MS Symbols 2015.zip"). You may use the ANAB symbol only as specified in the API management system registration agreement. The logo can only be used with the APIQR certification marks and the associated ISO 9001 or ISO 14001 accredited certificate number. Please note, the symbol above is an example only and cannot be used (e.g. cut and paste) by your organization.

A three-year transition period has been established to convert all materials where the old ANAB symbol (logo) is used to the new symbol. Certified organizations shall not use the old symbol after December 31, 2017. Correct use of the new symbol will be verified during annual audits.

APIQR will start issuing certificates of registration with the new ANAB symbol on or before January 1, 2016. New certificates for currently registered organizations will be issued consistent with recertification cycles and all certificates will be updated by December 31, 2017. Should you need additional information or require additional copies of the symbol, please contact APIQR at certification@api.org.

We thank you for your continued interest and support.
